AUSTRALIAN EXCHANGE TRADED FUND INDUSTRY: SUMMARY MARCH 2020 INVESTORS TURN TO ETFS AS VOLATILITY REIGNS SUPREME

- The Australian ETF industry suffered a second consecutive month of falling FuM as sharemarkets tumbled during some of the most intense volatility experienced in recent history.
- Industry FuM fell by $6.8B (-10.6% MoM decline) to end March at $57.2B. This represents the largest monthly FuM decline in dollar terms on record as well as biggest % monthly fall since the global financial crisis
- Industry growth over the last 12 months has been 24%, with absolute growth of $11.1B over this period.
- Notwithstanding the volatility and market declines however, it is notable that inflows into ETFs remained positive, mirroring what we have seen in more developed ETF industries such as the US and Canada. Those who are regular readers of this Review will note that this was also the case in February, where asset values fell but overall inflows again remained positive. The industry had positive net inflows in March of $522M.
- Without question, however, the most notable feature of the month was the exponential growth in trading, with Australian investors turning to the liquidity of ETFs to express their investment views like never before. ASX ETF trading value reached an all-time high of ~$18B, a number that is 2.5x the previous monthly record of $7.2B recorded only a month before. We saw particularly heavy trading in our Australian Strong Bear Hedge Fund (ASX: BBOZ) which was the number one most traded product in March, trading ~$2B in value for the month.
- 2 new products was launched during the month, including BetaShares S&P/ASX Australian Technology Sector ETF (ASX: ATEC) and a FANG ETF. We also saw the closure of an ETF by iShares (ITW, their Taiwan ETF)
- The volatility and market declines saw investors heavily rotate into broad Australian equities products (which received ~$1.1B of net inflows) with the large broad market Australian shares products all receiving significant inflows. By comparison, fixed income and cash exposures were sold down significantly with $770m and $376m of outflows respectively. Interestingly, and for the first time since their launch, March additionally saw robust inflows into hedged international products with investors seemingly believing that the strength we have seen in the US$ may be finally reaching its plateau.
- Given dramatic market declines the top 3 products for performance were the BetaShares Bear Suite of Funds, which all rose sharply in March – more specifically BBOZ (+33%), BBUS (+22%) and BEAR (+17%)
